

Two Football Stars May Attend University of Virginia

RHODES AND AMORET MAY ENTER VIRGINIA

Star Quarterback of Navy and Princeton Fullback Will Probably Attend University—Would Materially Strengthen Orange and Blue Eleven.

Charlottesville, Va., February 6.—According to a letter received here today from one of the Navy football squad, Rhodes, the captain and quarterback of last year's team, who lately resigned from the Academy, will enter Virginia to pursue a course in law at the university. It is not known just when Rhodes will matriculate, but if he can arrange his course to suit him it will probably be before the end of the present season. If he waits until next fall the six months' rule may prevent him from playing football, and for that reason those interested in football at Virginia will endeavor to have him register this year.

While Virginia has a reliable quarterback in Gooch, who has starred in the position for two years, she has not had a first-class fullback since Harry Fisher, and as Rhodes has also played the latter position he would be a most valuable acquisition to the team. He has only one more year of college football, having played three years at Annapolis, but aside from playing he would be able to assist materially in the coaching department.

There is also a possibility of Walker, the Princeton fullback, coming to Virginia. It is said that he will not go back to Princeton, probably on account of studies, and he expressed the intention of coming here to school if he does not return to Princeton.

He is a close friend of Captain Carter, Virginia's 1912 captain, having played with him at Lawrenceville, and the latter will see him while on a trip North.

The addition of such a pair of stars as these would give Virginia one of the strongest backfields in the history, and it is very likely that they will wear the Orange and Blue in 1913.

Considerable interest attaches to the closed indoor track meet which will be held by the Richmond Light Infantry Blues to-morrow night. The event is arranged for the benefit of the men who have not earned letters. The novices will be given an opportunity to show what they can do. Really the meet is to determine just how many new men can be added to the Blues. Material for the track team which will represent the militiamen in the Blues-College meet, March 3. The climax, however, will be reached when the eight men who are trying for the first relay team are divided into two squads, and will race against each other. Upon the showing made in this event will be chosen the varsity four for the big relay in the big meet. No admission to the meet to-morrow night is charged, admission being by invitation.

The North Carolinians took a decided brace at the opening of the second period, White caking the ball twice in succession. This served to break the visiting team's momentum, and from then on Virginia began to show real class. Stickley brought forth much applause by an accurate throw from the side lines, and Rixey and Gill followed with timely scores after some clever passing. Lyman, who was substituted for Gill, was the next to score. Stickley again struck his stride, and before the half had ended had brought his tally to six. In the second period both teams played in rapid attack.

While the contest was not marked by roughness, the speediness of play brought out many personal fouls. There were seven personal fouls, but there was no inclination on the part of Virginia to eliminate him from the contest, and he played throughout. A total of twenty-one fouls was called on the visiting team by the referee, but only nine of these were converted into points by Rixey.

Churchman and Campbell put up a great defensive game for Virginia, while the defensive play of Stickley, the smallest man on the floor, was spectacular. Siler and White started for the North Carolinians. The former proved one of the most accurate tossers from the foul line seen here this season. All of White's goals were made on hard chances. While the final made by Virginia did not approach the ninety points made by Washington and Lee against the Durham quint, some satisfaction is felt in the fact that the locals held the visitors to three points less than Trinity scored against the Lexington five, Line-up:

PETERSBURG TO ORGANIZE ALL AMATEUR TEAMS

Mass-Meeting in Interest of Amateur Baseball Will Be Held Tuesday Night.

Petersburg is taking more than usual interest in amateur baseball, and before the days was warm and the youngsters feel the call of the open, the Cockade City will have a well-organized and offered amateur baseball league. One league which began last season and included Chester, disorganized at a meeting held last night. The prime reason for disorganization was the unequal distribution of the amateur baseball talent. One team had the cream of the city, and the manager was unwilling to relinquish title to any of his players. This particular team, being so much better than any of the rest, the prime motive of organization—good and fair competition—was defeated. Therefore it was decided by the men who have the best interests of both the city and the game, as conducted by the amateurs, that it was best to start over again.

The Wire Grass League, which conducted games throughout 1912, is no more. But its place will be taken by a new league, with new blood and new life, with new ideals and new aims. A meeting will be held next Tuesday night in Petersburg, in the lodge rooms of Eureka Lodge, to form for the first time a league of amateurs in this city. To this meeting have been invited the leading clergy of the city.

Others, more or less prominently connected with the civic growth of the city, will also be on hand. Representatives of the boys and young men who expect to take part in the new league, will likewise be there. Every body on hand will be given an opportunity to express an opinion. It will be an open meeting in every sense of the word. It will be a meeting for the young men and for the young men and boys of the city.

It is known that one league of six clubs will be organized, but these public-spirited citizens who have called the meeting are anxious to form an amateur league, or maybe several other leagues. The ministers who have expressed themselves in favor of the movement, will tell of what can be accomplished. The layman will tell of what has been accomplished. Tuesday night will begin at 8:15 o'clock, and everybody in Petersburg is invited to attend. It is believed that many of the amateur enthusiasts of Richmond will be in attendance. However, the city of Petersburg has asserted that they will make amateur baseball a success on the south side of the Appomattox, and the people of Petersburg have an unusual knack of doing and accomplishing what they want.

BBB BESCHER IS NATIONAL'S BEST

Leads Parent Organization on Paths—Has Chance to Get New Record.

Cincinnati, February 6.—Hob Besch, of the Cincinnati team, has a chance to shatter a National League record the coming season by doing what he did last year—namely, setting the pace among the base burglars.

In the past, in the parent organization, players have won the base-stealing honors in five campaigns, but not in five consecutive campaigns. Besch, if he ranks No. 1 among the base-stealers in 1913, will be entitled to all the more credit for shattering a National League record by leading the base-stealing brigade for five years in succession, since he only has been in the National League a trifling over four seasons, joining the Reds in the fall end of the 1908 campaign. Right away he demonstrated that he would better the catchers, stealing ten bases in the thirty-two games in which he participated.

In 1908 Besch, previously denied a trial with Detroit (he would have been an ideal running mate for Tyus Raymond Cobb), led the National League in base-stealing, with fifty-four larcenies, and the habit he acquired in 1909 he has since maintained, for his rank was No. 1 in 1910, 1911 and 1912.

Besch was one of the few Cincinnati players who received votes from the Chalmers jury of experts as being the National League's most valuable player, is regarded by many as one of the sanest base-runners in the profession and has the reputation of never trying to boost his record by making unnecessary steals. That the Rhinelander knows when to set out to beat his way to either second or third is evidenced by the fact that only ten times last year he failed to attain the goal for which he set forth.

As he has sixty-seven successful steals, his base-running average, calculated in the new way, would be .870—figures much better than those made by Clyde Milan, the American League's champion base-runner.

Besch's first successful attempt to steal was in the game played on May 4, by Wingo, of the Cardinals, turning the sam e thing to Besch later in the season and was the only backstop who twice halted him.

The other backstops who nailed the Cincinnati speeder were Roger Bresnahan, Tom Needham, Jimmy Archer, W. K. Killefer, "Beachy" Graham, Otto Miller, Chief Meyers and Mike Simon. Probably the worst day Besch had on the bases was September 12. In the first inning of a game with Brooklyn, Besch was caught off second by Pitcher Don Carlos Patrick Regan, and later in the same contest the speeder was nailed in an attempt to steal to.
